Executive Summary

Objective: Evaluate NOD's position in disability inclusion and compare with key competitors, Open Sky Community Services, Autism Speaks and L'Arche.

Key Findings

- NOD focuses on employer engagement but lacks direct contact with the populations they serve
- Competitor organizations like OpenSky, L'Arche, and Autism Speaks provide stronger direct service models.

Recommendation: NOD should take a middleman role by acquiring or merging with a client-focused organization to directly connects job seekers with disabilities with vetted employers.

Current Gap Analysis

Challenges for NOD:

- Focuses on employer engagement but does not provide direct job placement support.
- Limited long-term career growth support for employees with disabilities.
- Needs stronger alignment between employer demand and job seeker availability.

Opportunities for Improvement:

- Develop a pipeline for candidates from screening to hiring and career growth.
- Leverage partnerships with organizations that directly serve job seekers.

Competitive Analysis Overview

	Focus Area	Key Strengths	Limitations
NOD	Employer engagement	Corporate partnerships, policy advocacy	Lacks direct job placement & career support
OpenSky	Community support & employment	Individualized job coaching, career mentorship	Smaller employer network
L'Arche	Inclusive communities	Long-term support for people with disabilities	Not employment-focused
Autism Speaks	Autism awareness & advocacy	Extensive resources, employer connections	Focused on autism, not broader disability inclusion

Partnerships & Scalability

NOD: Strong corporate and government partnerships.

OpenSky & L'Arche: Community-based partnerships for direct support.

Autism Speaks: Extensive collaborations with Fortune 500 companies.

Scalability Considerations:

NOD must evolve to include direct-to-client services for impact at scale.

Potential to merge with a client-focused org for end-to-end employment support.

Recommendations and Action Plan

Strategic Pivot: Merge or acquire an organization that serves as a direct job placement service.

Enhance Direct Client Services: Provide career coaching, mentorship, and leadership development.

Strengthen Employer Connections: Ensure guaranteed hiring pathways for people with disabilities.

Long-term Impact: Build a model where job seekers can grow into management roles.

CONCLUSION

Why This Matters

NOD must fill the critical gap between employer readiness and job seeker accessibility.

Strategic Vision

Evolve into the leading facilitator of disability employment by ensuring direct connections between job seekers and guaranteed hiring opportunities.

Next Steps

Begin discussions with potential acquisition targets and develop an implementation roadmap.
